Terms and Conditions

The rights to our music are non-transferable. The original copyright remains with CoreSounds Productions. This license grants the licensee the use of the music under the terms listed below

1. The licensee is permitted to use the purchased music for their own multi-media productions for use in film, radio, television, video productions and internet usage
2. The licensee is granted all sounds recording dubbing fees for the above uses
3. The licensee is granted all synchronisation rights in the composition
4. The license covers all mechanical rights for reproduction
5. The licensee is permitted to edit the music
6. There is no limit to the number of copies of the production
7. The license covers world-wide usage
8. The license is fully commercial
9. This license does NOT cover audio only productions or playing the music in a public place. Please contact us for further details.
10. You may not redistribute, sell or share the original music or any parts thereof. The license is non-transferable.

Broadcasting/TV/Performing Rights

In the event of the licensee's production being broadcast the responsibility of informing the relevant Performing Rights organisation lies with the performing organisation/broadcaster/website owner and NOT with the licensee.

After purchase the licensee will receive an invoice outlining the music purchased and the composers' names. These need to be passed on to the relevant broadcaster for Performing Rights purposes.

CoreSounds Productions is the sole copyright holder for any music sold by us. We have full rights and authority to grant you the rights outlined in this license.
